

SOFTWARE USAGE AND CONTROL POLICY

1. Purpose and Scope

The management, accountability and secure configuration of software used within an organisation forms an important element of a sound information security management process. If software is not identified and controlled (using a register), managed correctly (procured, patched, updated), and securely configured, then the University leaves itself open to having unmanaged vulnerabilities and

